

CARRIE CLASSON PRESENTS

THE POSTSCRIPT LIVE

HONESTY. HUMOR. OPTIMISM.

WHO SHE IS

Carrie Classon is a speaker and nationally syndicated columnist with Andrews McMeel Universal, read in 200 papers nationwide. Before becoming a speaker and writer, Carrie was in professional theater and international business. In her weekly column, The Postscript, Carrie writes about the transformative power of optimism and how to find the extraordinary in the ordinary.

Her novel, Loon Point, will be released by Lake Union in February 2026.

WHAT SHE SAYS

Carrie champions the idea that it is never too late to reinvent oneself in unexpected and fulfilling ways.

“We are all storytellers, telling stories about ourselves every day. How we make meaning of these stories defines us. We become the story we tell ourselves.”

Carrie shares stories from her nationally syndicated column, The Postscript, about educated flatworms, transatlantic turnarounds, and how to figure out what kind of dog you are. She offers practical advice on how audiences can nurture lifelong optimism, and she celebrates the amazing transformations that can only be made later in life through implausible true stories, serious laughter, hilarious poignancy, lots of sparkly costumes—and an extra sunset!

WHAT THEY SAY

“Carrie has the ability to touch people at different levels—I laugh out loud, and then shed a tear. To be able to pull those kinds of emotions out of your audience takes talent—and Carrie has plenty.”—Sagamore News Media

“Droll, wise and moving. Ms. Classon is a gifted actress and wonderful storyteller. It was provocative and made me think about the new phase of my life.”
—Audience Survey, Santa Fe Playhouse

“Very inspirational! We need to hear stories to inspire us to keep creating our own second sunset. Bon Voyage!”
—Audience Feedback, I’ve Been Waiting All My Life to Be Middle-Aged

“If The Postscript were a cake, Carrie’s obvious passion for life would be the frosting.”
—Cleveland Daily Banner
